1.8 SWOT analysis of Suzuki Bangladesh, Rancon Motorbikes Ltd

Strengths- Rancon Motorbikes Ltd is a concern of a very reputed and well known company of Rancon Holdings Ltd, which was previously a part of RANGS Group. They have many SBU's and Suzuki Bangladesh is one of the very prominent business unit of RHL. There are only 2 Suzuki Bikes dealer in Bangladesh in RMBL is one of them. So, they are in a very strong position. Bike lovers are very intimidated by the Brand Suzuki, which itself is a very prestigious and reputed brand and it is a great strength for RMBL.

Weakness- Servicing facilities of the Bikes needs to be improved and the company is already working on it. Since Suzuki Bikes holds a significant class and standard, it is quite expensive then other bikes in the market, which can lower the affordability of the normal people.

Opportunities- RMBL already holds a huge position in the market. But there are many Suzuki Bikes which are available in other countries but they are yet to be available in Bangladesh. RMBL can take that opportunity and flourish the market of Bikes with new amazing Bikes and can grab a larger proportion of the Market.

Threats- To few people Bikes are necessities and to some they are luxury. Suzuki does offer bikes of various range but there are many people who prefer cars on motorbikes. There is a high risk factor of using Bikes, that is, it is very prone to road accidents which highly decreases the number of customers. Another threat is, in Bangladesh the bike market is huge and there is huge competition. Suzuki has to work to enhance their sales and outway other companies and establish the brand name with more dignity.
Chapter 2: Project Part

2.1 Introduction

Recruitment and Performance Appraisal

Recruitment and Performance Appraisal, both hold a significant implication in Human Resource Management System. Recruitment is the process of hiring employees in certain positions of the organization which obtains various responsibility and has to go through a vigorous procedure in order to obtain the perfect eligible candidate. Performance appraisal is the key factor of the efficiency of one’s work. It is basically the evaluation sheet of the employees on which their day to day hard work is judged and monitored. In Human Resource Management both of these factors has a huge implication.

According to the definition of Recruitment, it is the process of identifying and hiring the most qualified candidate either from within or outside of an company for a job vacancy in a most timely and cost effective way.

A performance appraisal (PA), also referred to as a performance review, performance evaluation, development discussion, or employee appraisal is a method by which the job performance of an employee is documented and evaluated. Performance appraisals are a part of career development and consist of regular reviews of employee performance within organizations.

2.2 Origin of the Report

The sole purpose of this report is for the completion of my Internship Program of my graduation at BRAC Business School of BRAC University. And to provide my insight about Suzuki Bangladesh, Rancon Motorbikes Ltd. The main purpose of the internship program is to give students the idea of the real corporate world and to obtain the knowledge that how the corporate world works and what are the key requirements it wants from the students and how the students should prepare themselves for the near future.

The main significance of the report is the completion of the internship program and to enlighten ourselves with the knowledge that we have gained during this 3 months time in assigned organization. The internship program provides students with opportunities of job fields and widen the horizon of our knowledge in the corporate dynamics. It makes us realize how different the real works are than the books that only taught us theories. It is basically a practical implication of our 4 years of under graduation program.

2.3 Background of the Report

The report is based on the Recruitment process and the Performance Appraisal Process of Rancon Motorbikes Ltd. The processes that RMBL follows and other suggestions are provided that it can undergo in the future.

2.4 Objective of the Report

The report is based on the Recruitment Process and Performance Evaluation of Suzuki Bangladesh, Rancon Motorbikes Ltd in order to find out the efficiency of the recruitment process in the organization and are the employees who are being selected are the best eligible candidates or not and if there is any gap in this then how it can be mitigated for better efficiency and effectiveness in the workforce.

Specific objectives are:
- Current Recruitment Process
- Effectiveness of the Process
- Current Performance Appraisal System
- Effectiveness of the System
- Better Recommendation
2.5 Scope of the Report

Human Resource Management is a huge sector and has a lot of factors where we can work and bring out specific data and reasons about the efficiency of the workforce and how it can be enhanced for a better profitability. The report has the scope to cover different aspects of HRM, which mostly includes recruitment, selection, and performance appraisal, how it is being measured and monitored, loopholes in measuring the performance. It was part of my academic program to learn about different HR issues here mostly researched on job advertisement, recruitment, selection practices of Rancon Motorbikes Ltd and to make concentrated suggestions or recommendation about the recruitment or successful job advertisement other than narrate the observation and reach to a conclusion.

2.6 Methodology

Most of the data are obtained from secondary sources and many of the information were obtained from primary sources.

Primary information are obtained while working at Suzuki Bangladesh (RMBL), I have asked many questions to the Senior Executive of HR, who was my supervisor and she helped me a lot to understand the entire process of recruitment and selection. I have obtained many information about performance appraisal and how it is maintained from another Senior Executive of the HR team.

Secondary information was obtained from internet, form the website of Rancon Holdings Ltd and Rangs Group. To get information or data about the specific objective that is the existing gaps between required capabilities for a vacancy and the available capabilities in a shortlisted candidates pool, I have browsed our corporate job advertisement site that is bdjobs.
2.7 Limitations

The limitations of the study was that HR is a very confidential department of any company, which was no different in terms of RMBL so there were many information where I had no access of so I could not undergo a indepth research for the requirement for the project. Hence the availability of the information was limited.

Performance appraisal is a highly confidential factor for any individual’s career and for the company too. Therefore, such information cannot be disclosed to anyone, so it was quite difficult to obtain authentic information about the appraisal system.

2.8 Literature Review

According to Edwin B Flippo
Recruitment is nothing but the process of searching the candidates for employment and then stimulating them for jobs in the organization. It is the activity that links the employees and the job seekers. It is also defined as the process of finding and attracting capable applicants for employment. It is the pool of applicants from which the new employees are selected. It can also be defined as a process to discover sources of manpower to meet the requirement of the staffing schedule and to employ effective measures for attracting the manpower in adequate numbers in order to facilitate the effective selection of an efficient working force.

According to David A De Cenzo
The recruitment needs are of three types which are as follow:
(a) First one is Planned Needs: These are the needs that arise from the changes in the organization and retirement policy creating vacancy for new jobs.
(b).Second one is Anticipated Needs: These are those movements in personal which an organization can predict by studying trends both in external as well as internal environment.
(c) Last one is Unexpected Needs: These needs arise due to various reasons like deaths, resignations, accidents, illness, relocation etc.

Alo (1999) defines performance appraisal as a process involving deliberate stock taking of the success, which an individual or organization has achieved in performing assigned tasks or meeting set goals over a period of time. It therefore shows that performance appraisal practices should be deliberate and not by accident. It calls for serious approach to knowing how the individual is doing in performing his or her tasks.

Atiomo (2000) agrees with Fajana (1997) that performance appraisal is a system which provides organizations with a means of identifying not only what people’s performance levels are but which areas those levels need to be improved if maximum use is to be made of human resource. According to Atiomo, every organization should ensure that the individual is clearly aware of what his functions and responsibilities are to make performance appraisal effective.

Chapter 5
Recruitment Process of the Organization

5.1 Recruitment Process of Suzuki Bangladesh, RMBL

The recruitment process is quite a hazardous and lengthy process and is very crucial because an eligible candidate is required to serve the company and for that the Human Resource Department has to look for a eligible candidate who can serve the company in a proper manner and can lead the company to have a greater profitability and enhance the efficiency of the work. In this respect, it must be borne in mind that each individual has a valuable contribution, irrespective of the position or status of the employee in the organization. Recruiting applicants and selecting prospective employees is known as the key strategic management of Human Resource Management. Stated that an organization’s performance is a direct result of the individuals employs. The specific strategies used and decisions made in staffing process will directly impact an organization’s success or lack thereof. The aim of the policy and procedures is to support the recruitment and selection of people with necessary ability, skills, qualification and competencies to contribute effectively for the organization.

The recruitment process is framed in such a way so that the selected employees can uphold the vision of RMBL and can contribute effortlessly to the organizational works and ethics.

It is basically the Sub Business Unit Head/Function/Line Manager who will work with the new employee. That’s why the BU Head/Function /Line Manager are involved fully in recruitment process. The BU Head/Function/Line Manager depends upon the people that they recruit to assist them in achieving their KPIs or action plans. The BU Head/Function/Line Manager is in the best position to assess the candidate’s technical and professional ability to fit in the team and assess it accordingly.
The job specification is provided to the SUB HR lead and to the divisional Head of HR by the Head of other department and a Job description is prepared in accordance to that specifications. It is the responsibility of the SBU HR Lead to review and update the Recruitment Standard from time to time. Such standards would not be applicable to existing employees but for promotion cases, the set standards except the educational qualification should be considered.

When a vacancy comes about within the approved establishment and it is deemed necessary to fill in the vacancy, the Employee Requisition Form should be completed and a copy of the form should be sent to Manager, HR who should find out if there is any suitable candidate already working in the Group for whom a transfer to the vacant position would mean either a promotion or better prospect promotion. HR Manager will return the Requisition Form with his comments to the requiring department at the earliest. Hence, the search will start for the new candidate.

5.2 Vacancy Advertisement

It is done both internally and externally as Rancon Holdings Ltd is a huge company with many Sub Business Units, so there can be other potential candidates or interns working in different SBUs, so the Senior Executive of the HR who is responsible for the recruitment process contacts with the HR executives (responsible for recruitment process) and discusses about the job opportunity and whether they have any potential candidates or if. If yes, they asks them to forward their CV in mail, and the process hereafter continues.

But if it believed that there is no candidate within The Rancon Holdings Ltd who is suitable for the role, the advertisement should be done externally as Organizational rules and regulations as well as internally. It may be chosen to advertise internally and externally at the same time if there is a tight time frame.
5.3 How to Advertise

The Job description is made, which contains a shot organizational profile, job designation, qualifications required, number of years of experience and the salary range. This job description is then published, RMBL prefers bdjobs.com mainly in order to look for employees. But some of the JDs are also published in social networks such as facebook groups regarding vacancies. As RMBL belongs to a highly established and renowned company the response from the candidates is quite huge.

5.4 Shortlisting Applicants

Effective employee selection is a critical component of a successful organization. How employees perform their jobs is a major factor in determining how successful an organization will be. Job performance is essentially determined by the ability of an individual to do a particular job and the effort the individual is willing to put forth in performing it.

Through effective selection, the organization can maximize the probability that its new employees will have the necessary KSAs (Key Success Areas) to do the jobs they were hired to do. Thus, employee selection is one of the two major ways (along with orientation and training) to make sure that new employees have the abilities required to do their jobs. It also provides the base for other HR practices—such as effective job design, goal setting, and compensation—that motivate workers to exert the effort need to do their job effectively.

Shortlisting is the process of deciding which potential job candidates will be interviewed. Since it is generally most effective to interview only three or four candidates for a particular position, here need to screen all applicants and create a shortlist of those who best meet the selection criteria. During the time of short listing applicants, concentrated on all criteria those are recommended.
These must be consistent with the advertised requirements. Shortlisting is a very important part of the recruitment process. Although it can be time consuming it is worth conducting it with care and consideration. If employer don’t want to miss an excellent candidate or doesn't want to waste their time with someone who doesn’t meet the requirements then they can use the rating system, through which it will be easier to shortlist the applicants.

Job applicants differ along many dimensions, such as educational and work experience, personality characteristics, and innate ability and motivation levels. The logic of employee selection begins with the assumption that at least some of these individual differences are relevant to a person's suitability for a particular job. Thus, in employee selection the organization must (1) determine the relevant individual differences (KSAs) needed to do the job and (2) identify and utilize selection methods that will reliably and validly assess the extent to which job applicants possess the needed KSAs. The organization must achieve these tasks in a way that does not illegally discriminate against any job applicants on the basis of race, color, religion, sex, national origin, disability, or veteran's status.

5.5 Interview

After the shortlisting is done, from a pool of CVs only few CVs are selected who are the very best among the applicants and those who meets the criteria perfectly. Mainly they are contacted via phone calls to offer the job opportunity and are asked whether they are interested or not. If the candidates are interested then further details and interview date and time are shared. The interview date and time basically depends on the availability of the SBU HR Lead and also on the availability of the Head of other departments for which the interview is being conducted.

The evaluation sheet of the candidate is a very important tool for RMBL. Prior to every interviews the Candidate evaluation sheet is prepared and is attached with the CV. It contains a range of marks from 1-5. But in my 3 months of internship period I have noticed that, they prefer to provide their comment on the evaluation sheet rather than marking it. They comment on the skills the candidates possess. If the candidate is a fresher then they judge them with the depth of knowledge they have. If the candidate has a long time experience then they judge them with their professional qualifications. Ask them about their current/previous works and how they have dealt with any problems that arises and how they have solved it.

The interview panel mainly contains 2-3 members. There has to be a member from the HR team. The SBU HR Lead mainly tackles the responsibility of the interviews. And depending on the department for which the interview is scheduled, the Head of that department seats on the interview.

The Interview Evaluation Sheet used in RMBL is mentioned below:

2. After the interview the interviewer should review the form and make a recommendation as to whether the person should be employed or considered for employment or rejected.
5.6 Candidate Selection

Candidates are selected in the interview board depending on the years of experience and proficiency level mainly. Educational level is a factor too. People with an MBA degree can apparently demand a higher salary than people with just a bachelor’s degree. There are few candidates graduated from universities out of Bangladesh, so they are considered at a different level and given a higher priority. In the interview board, the interviewers tend to bring out the bests within the candidate and tries to understand the underneath psychology behind it. With the years of experience gained by the interviewers, they can easily judge the potential within a candidate and how can that be useful for the company. The selected candidates have to go through a second interview. This interview is with the Managing Director of the Motor Bikes Division, Mr. Shawn Hakim. After the interview, the candidates selected by the MD is selected and further procedure is carried out.

5.7 Joining of the Candidate

After all the above procedure is done, the candidate is called for the verbal offer.

Verbal offer:

The verbal offer of the role the candidate is given. The discussion should cover the following:

- Congratulate the Candidate
- Tell them about the Role at which they are appointed
- Ask for a payslip from the current or past organization in order to prepare the offer letter.
- The compensation package offered is based on the salary discussion on the interview board.
Written letter of offer

A written letter of the offer must be forwarded to the candidate. Once the candidate has verbally accepted the position, the appropriate letter of offer is organized. This letter should be sent to the candidate as early as possible after receiving the payslip from the candidate. An introductory package will be sent to the successful candidate, along with the letter of offer. At least one week before the person commencing in their new position, an appointment letter is prepared and the candidate is asked to come over at any time to take the appointment letter and see if there is any queries or not.

Day of Joining

There are few formalities at the day of joining. The selected candidate is asked to remain at the premises of the office within a certain time. The senior executive of HR who is responsible for recruitment greets the new employee and gives him the joining letter where the employee has to sign. The employee has to submit all the basic documents such as:
- Educational certificates
- Documents from previous workplace such as appointment letter, resignation letter, words of good conduct/recommendation letter.

- TIN certificate

- NID

- Bank account’s document, nominee document
5.8 Induction

The new employee is then taken on an introduction ride by the senior executive of HR to everyone’s desk and is greeted with everyone. That is actually a gesture of acceptance and welcome and in the process they exchange a few words. In RMBL there is a trend of official induction in the main office of Rancon Holdings Ltd. where HR people from all the SBUs come to the Holdings and give presentations about their own SBUs and provide others with knowledge of what they actually do and what Rancon Holdings Ltd is all about. All the new employees from different SBUs are invited in the induction program and they have to spend an entire day over there.
Chapter 6
The Performance Appraisal Process

6.1 Performance Appraisal

Performance appraisal is the process of obtaining, analyzing and recording information about the relative capability of an employee. The focus of the performance appraisal is measuring and improving the actual performance of the employee and also the future potential of the employee.

Its aim is to measure what an employee does. It is a powerful tool to calibrate, refine and reward the performance of the employee. It helps to analyze one’s achievement and evaluated its contribution toward achievement of overall organizational goals. By focusing the attention on performance, performance appraisal goes to the heats of personnel management and reflects the management’s interest in the progress of employees.

People differ in their abilities and aptitudes. There is always some difference between quality and quantity of the same work on the same job being done by two different people. Therefore performance management and performance appraisal is necessary to understand each employee’s abilities, competencies, relative merit and worth for the organization. Performance Appraisal rates the employees in terms of their performance. Performance appraisal takes into account the past performance of the employees and focuses on the improvement of the future performance of employees.

6.2 Objective of Performance Appraisal

· To review the performance of employees over a given period of time.
· To judge the gap between the actual and desired performance.
· To help the management in exercising organizational control.
· Helps to strengthen the relationship and communication between supervisor-subordinates and management- employees.
· To diagnose the strengths and weakness of the individual so as to identify the training and development needs of the future.
· To provide the feedback to employees regarding their past performance.
· Provide information to assist in the other personal information in the organization.
· Provide clarity of the expectation and responsibilities of the functions to be performed by the employees.
· To judge the effectiveness of the other human resource function of the organization such as recruitment, selection, training and development.
· To reduce the grievance of the employees.

If employee’s development is required for performance improvement then solving these performance problems should be straightforward with clear understanding of root causes. Possible approaches include charging the work environment, better prioritization of conflicting priorities, time off, additional training, shadow or buddy system, mentoring or coaching, changing team environment or set objective and so on.

6.3 Methods of Measuring Performance

There has been numerous methods prepared in order to measure employee’s performance and how they can be helpful to give appropriate feedback to the employees so that they can enhance their performance and able to perform better in the near future.

The appraisal methods fall under 2 categories:

- Past Oriented Method
- Future Oriented Method
7.1 Existing Performance Evaluation Process at RMBL

Performance evaluation is a very crucial factor. It can enhance the performance of an employee whereas it can also deteriorate the performance of an employee. In RMBL it is considered with great importance and has 2 types of forms

- A performance appraisal is done while transferring an employee from probation period to confirmation
- Another performance appraisal is done on the existing confirmed employees for promotion or salary increment

Probationary performance evaluation is done after 6 months of joining. The following format is used here:

Chapter 8
Observation and Recommendation

8.1 Critical Observation

1. Suzuki Bangladesh, RMBL is on operation from 2014 and is a very polished organization with everything well organized and well maintained. The office is highly maintained and well decorated and has a very good work environment and culture.

2. RMBL provides good benefit packages to its employees and these benefits lead them to stay long term with the organization. Benefit packages of RMBL are attractive salary, provident fund, subsidiary lunch facilities, and transport facilities for employees, profit sharing, increment and so on.

3. A very good practice that RMBL has is that it shares a large amount of Profit share with the employees at the end of the year. Which actually pays all the hard work that all the employees has done for the organization and are well deserved.

4. The recruitment process completely relies on the board the interview panel. They do not undergo any other recruitment process rather than interview. No written tests even used for recruitment.

5. There are 2 steps of interview, one with the HR team and the Heads of the Department for which the interview is being taken and the other is with the Divisional Managing Director.

6. In the recruitment process RMBL does not perform reference check is done, which is a major issue.

7. There are many non management employees such as cook, cleaner, technician, helper, driver. The recruitment process of the non management employees also follows a systematic rule. They have to undergo an interview, where their skills are judge and in that way they are hired. They are recruited in a contractual basis of 6 months and the recruitment procedure is abide by the labour law of Bangladesh.

8. The performance appraisal of the probationary employee is considered with great importance as a newly recruited employee should be able to serve the company in every way possible so that their work helps the company to attain higher profits in the long term and hence, their performance is monitored from the very beginning.

9. The performance appraisal of the existing employees largely depends on their KPI and how it is performed. It is basically provided by the Head of the Departments and they are ones to judge the employee.

10. In performance appraisal system the main function of the HR department is to prepare the performance appraisal form and mail it to the department Heads with a specific deadline and the Heads have to submit the forms with their remarks within the given time and the HR department has to follow by the remarks that how much salary should be incremented, whether the employee should be promoted or not.

11. HR department at RMBL does not follow any automated system to maintain the regular HR updates. All these are done manually like singing of leave / late forms, maintaining the leave/ late forms, maintaining employee database and regular updates. All I found much disorganized set up of employees leave forms and databases. And it is very time consuming to find the leave forms of all employees of different concerns who have been taken leaves throughout the year to make their leave encashment statement.
8.2 Recommendation

1. Suzuki Bangladesh, RMBL has many efficient resources which they have hired through the existing process but I think they should also focus on other methods of recruitment such as written tests, Focus group discussions, group work and presentations.

2. It is not a very common organization within the university students, in order to have more market exposure it can undergo campus campaigns to attract more talented young people.

3. The Company could participate in the job fairs in their recruitment. A considerable volume of applications is dropped in the organizations as a result of the exposure created in the job fairs. The organization can promote its image as a potential recruiter through its successful participation in the job fairs.

4. The company can facilitate online CV-posting system such as e-portals that is a very popular and effective practice used by the top business organizations.

5. In response to the performance appraisal system, the responses are kept completely confidential with high priority. But the employees should be known about their ratings individually and that way they can be aware of their performance and can enhance it further in the long run.

6. They should use a proper HRIS in order to monitor and update all the employees information, which will make works more handy and well organized.

7. A lot of information of non management employees are missing so that should be considered with importance and the management should take actions in accordance to that in order have all the information of the employees.
8. They only focuses on the KPI of the employees and that too is given by the Head of the Departments. I recommend a thorough observation should be made by the HR team too in order to evaluate the performance of the employees effectively.

The other methods that can be used are:
1. Critical incident method
2. 360 Evaluation
3. Self-Evaluation Method

Critical Incident Method:

In this method, the managers are told to maintain the records of the positive and negative behavioral performance of employees for different time periods. These records are evaluated to get the final report. This method is very much helpful for tracking an employee’s step-by-step development. The identification of the additional training required becomes easy in this process. In this method, the higher ranking members of the organization can deliver periodic feedback which enables the employees to improve upon their weaknesses. One limitation of this method is that there is a possibility of generating reports with prejudice. That is why this method is not solely dependable.

360 Evaluation:

Using this method, an employee is evaluated on the basis of feedback from his immediate supervisors, peers, and from the members of the other departments with which he works on a regular basis. By using this method, the acceptability and compatibility of an employee in the company environment can be judged. It can also be judged whether an employee’s performance differs when he deals with other departments or not. The multi-source data helps evaluate an employee’s interpersonal and team building skills. The limitation of this method is that the feedback may vary person to person because here, feedback is delivered on the basis of the personal point of view.
Self-Evaluation Method:

In most of the cases, employees are not aware of the areas which need personal improvement. Awareness of the limitations helps encourage employees to take the necessary steps to overcome them. The self-evaluation method reveals how much an employee is aware of his/her limitations. Here, the employees are asked to judge their own performance. A set of multiple-choice questions is given based on the performance evaluation where they are to answer what they believe about their own competency and performance. This method opens the scope of discussion with the employees. Discussion makes the problematic areas clear. It also helps take the effective measurements to improve the skills and talent collaboratively.

One drawback of this method is that you cannot solely depend on this method. You need to combine this method with other methods to get the desired result.

9. Proper training and development program should be introduced to enhance the career growth opportunities of employees. Though management feels that training is unnecessary cost of an organization so its important to convince management that through training an employee can develop its skills that ultimately give benefits to the work and help the organization to achieve its goal. Better training opportunity can help employee to convert in important asset of organization. So management itself helps and motivates its employees to attend the training session.

10. Organization should assess the need of its employees to create the better working environment. It’s important to arrange daily consultancy with employees to make them feel that they are being cared by their supervisors. And through assessing their need and attitude toward work they can also understand the psychology of their employees and for what they are good at.

11. Performance appraisal format should be different based on the department and its employee’s role. RMBL follows a single format to every of its departmental people.
According to me format should be different based on working nature. For example, leadership skill, communication skill are important for Marketing and HR people, finance people should be more focused on analytical and decision making skills and IT people should be more focus on technical skills. Thereby traits included in format should be differentiated by the nature on department.

12. Organization should assess the performance every month or quarterly to measure the performance accurately. Through this way employees will be aware of their task to be performed perfectly. There will have better documents to show in the yearend about the total performance of an employee. Monthly assessment documents will be kept with supervisor. At the yearend all the documents together supervisor can get the exact rate of an employee and submit the final sheet to the HR. For those SBU where supervisors are frequently changed, they can get the idea of its employees by seeing the previous work records of the employees.
9. Conclusion
