Executive Summary

Inan Medicals Ltd. is one of the renewed non-banking financial institution in Bangladesh. It started its operation at 2007 and it is the pioneer financial institution in Bangladesh. IML has export quality of goods. I have done my internship in Inan Medicals HR and my Topic is “The HRM Practice in Inan Medicals Limited”. Human resources are the most important resource of every organization to gain a sustainable competitive advantage over competitors. To manage these human resources, there are several practices that are used globally by different organizations to create a competent workforce. These HR Practices are a set of principles that is used as a potential contributor to find suitable personnel for and improve their commitment, productivity and loyalty toward the company. This report contains the summary of Human Resource practices followed by Inan Medicals Ltd. and how its importance to improve their manpower. The analysis is based on my journey as an Intern of Human Resource Department. Our bookish knowledge tells us that, in theory there are practices like HRP, Recruitment & Selection, Compensation & Benefit, Training & Development, and Performance Management, sums up as HR Practices. There are sets of different versions and uses of these theories. But my experience tells me, not many organizations follow those bookish theories. They tend to modify them, update them and even just drop them when necessary. In my report, I modestly tried to uphold all the HR activities and practices conducted and followed by Inan Medicals Ltd., find the flaws which are drawing them back and make some recommendation which may better their situation.

II) Extreme work pressure restricted the officials can’t give us much time even if they had cordial intentions to provide accurate information.
III) Due to the sensitive nature of some topic, many efforts were required to remain aware and adhere to the company requirement of maintaining confidentiality

Literature Review On HRM
4. HR Function

The Actual Function of HRM within the value chain of an organization is of significance. It has been postulated by some researchers that the role of HRM within an organization is significant in the firm’s ability to achieve its organizational objectives and develop sustainable competitive advantage with in the market place which it operates. This is achieved via the polices each firm enact, and the method it uses to attract and retain the right employees for its need (Holland, Act 2007). The HR function can be thought of as having six menus, from which companies can choose the most appropriate practices. Decider and Kramer (2008, P58) state that each of these menus refers to a particular functional area of HRM: Job analysis, job design, recruitment, selection, training and development, performance management, pay structure, incentive, benefit, and labor/ employee relation.

4.1 Job analysis and design

This refers to the process of getting detailed information about a job (De Cieri & Kramar, 2008, P60), which could provide information for a variety of purposes, including determining training needs, development, criteria, and appropriate pay and productivity levels (price, 2003, P362). Job design deals with making decisions about tasks that will be required in a given job (De Cieri & Karmar, 2008; Hacker, 2003).

There are two specific elements to pay here. The first concerns the need to meet the organization’s needs in terms of productivity, achievement and quality, while the second relates to the need of individual employees and the requirement to provide them with work environment that is challenging and rewarding (Amstrong, 2009; Compion , Master & Higgs 1993; Kozlowski & Bell 2003; Stewart 2006) the effectiveness of HR practices requires that the job be clearly understood by both Jobholders and the organizations activity pursuing this practice as an HR planning strategy are likely to gain a competitive advantage (Anthony, Kacmar & Prrewe 2002 ; Dessler 2003).

4.2 Employee recruitment and selection

Any process for which an organization seeks applicants and attracts potential employees is called recruitment selection refers to the process by which an organization identifies those applicants with the knowledge, skill, abilities, and other characteristics that will help it achieve its goals (DeCieri & Karmer 2008, P30). The overall aim of the recruitment and the selection process is to obtain at minimum cost the number and quality of employees required to satisfy the human cost the number and quality of employees required to satisfy the human resources needs of the organization (Amstrong 2003, P395).

Employer try to select and recruit the right candidates. At the same time, job seekers gather information about organizations and current job offerings, because they cannot gain complete knowledge of all alternatives and their potential characteristics, they rely on imperfect signal (Chan & Kuock, 2011). It has been noticed that organizations that want to fill their vacancy very quickly or who are unwilling to have recruitment process such as job analysis, are possibly less discriminating in the quality and quantity of candidates (Careless 2007). While organizations who put effort in to the process of recruitment turn on more search channels than organizations who do not (Russo, Rietveld, Nijkamp & Gorte 2000). When the cost of a mistake in recruitment is high, organizations are more discerning and the turnover of employee will increase (Chan & Kuok 2011).

4.3 Employee Training and Development

Training is not simply a means of arming employees with the skills they need to perform their jobs; it is also often deemed to be representative of an employer’s commitment to their work force (Storey & Sisson 2003)

Investment in training measures and the implementation of development schemes are becoming increasingly acknowledged as vital elements of HRM (Oakland & Oakland 2001), and studies across an wide range of industries and sectors have all found a positive correlation between investment on training and employee commitment (Basis & Buren correlation between investment on training and employee commitment (Basis & Buren 2001). For example, studies completed by living and Thomas (1997) and marching ton and Wilkinson (1997) focus on employee commitment among hospital administrators, nurses, service workers and clerical employees were more committed to their jobs and their achievement of the objectives of the organization when they felt that the company cared about their training and development needs. In summary, appropriate training contributes positively to employee retention because it makes employees feel recognized for their strengths and it creates possibilities to develop their qualities (Kyndt Et al 2009), Visser 2001).
4.4 Performance Management

Performance management is mainly concerned with the individual’s performance and development. It is used to ensure that the employee’s activities and outcomes are development. It is used to ensure that the employee’s activities and outcomes are congruent with the organization’s goals (De Cieri & Karmert 2008, P61), by focusing on future performance appraisal (Armstrong, 003, P481). This requires management to act as partners within framework in which they and the employee’s together can achieve the result required. For this to occur managers need a clear understanding of the way in which performance appraisal can help the organization (Chelladurai, 2006).

4.5 Pay Structure, Incentives and Benefits

Pay is an important feature of HRM. As De Cieri Kramer (2008, P62) state, the pay system has an important role in implementing strategies. The way people are paid affects the quality of their work, their attitude towards customers, and their willingness to be flexible and learn new skills (Milkovich, Gerhandt & Hannon 1991). De Cieri and Kramer (2008, P62) state that a high level of pay and benefit relative to that of competitors can ensure that a company attracts and retains high-quality employees. Pay may be one way workers measure whether the time they spend and the effort they out into working are worthwhile (Ryan & Sagas 2009). Using discrepancy theory, rice, McFarlin, and Bennett (2006). One standard that an employee may use is what other workers receives. If they feel that their efforts and contributions exceed the rewards from the organization and job, especially, in pay, dissatisfaction may occur (Ryan & Sagas, 2009).

4.6 Labor / Employee Relation

The term ‘employee relation’ refers to a company’s efforts to manage relationships between employers and employee. An organization with a good employee relations program provides fair and loyal to the company. Such program also aims to prevent and resolve problems arising from situations at work.

Employee relations programs are typically part of a human resource strategy designed to ensure the most effective use of people to accomplish the organization’s mission. Human resources strategies are deliberate plans companies use to help them gain and maintain a competitive edge in the marketplace. Employee relations programs focus on issues affecting employees, such as pay and benefits, supporting work life balance, and safe working conditions.

Inan Medicals Ltd. facilitate to align human resources and business goals by ensuring Employee Satisfaction, giving more focus on high engagement and managing transformation & change.
Chapter-6

Recommendation &

Conclusion
6.1 Findings & Recommendations

- Highlighting the benefits of HR module system. Most time maximum employees are unaware of how to apply for leave request or how to download pay slip from system. There is minimum tendency for request leave application through online system rather employee send email to their supervisor for leave approval. Later HR officer print out the email copy or took down note and later on adjusted in system. Most time employee failed to view accurate casual/earned leave status in system as the fully depend on HRD manual leave status. So strong recommendation for arrange a training session on “Self-service HR module system” and system modification.

- Upgraded attendance software is highly recommended. Manual tracking of leave application questioned the usefulness of existing attendance tracking system. So selecting the right system is mandatory. Employee leave request could not able to merge with paperless software system. As HR office manual track down the leave request in paper. Later on adjusted the leave request in separate excel sheet.
✓ Leave report is not found in software. Software show the date of leave or leave category. It is based on excel sheet. So it needs automation.

✓ Credit Report is shown without return. Return is shown as due. It needs to development site. It creates difficulty for future credit management.

✓ Though company have software salary sheet, salary sheet is based on excel based. They are not start yet. So it needs to automation. Another thing, salary sheet is only shown Basic and others but other site (Medicals, House rent etc..) is hidden. So it needs to develop.

Through organization have online sales or Facebook sales site. But it is not working perfectly. It need to promote human resources. It will be essential in development of future business.
Employees must wear the ID card must be visible in office premises. It must be strictly followed. ID cards are for identity of a person and more over it is a part and parcel of HR policies. When we talk about professionalism, everything comes into play start in from the dress code, behavior, attitude and also the ID cards. It can be written down in Code and Conduct.
6.2. Conclusion

Inan Medicals Ltd. provided good quality product such 2007. It will work for development. It needs to follow more HR policy. Though they have enough system, it should be essential to rearrange their whole system. They have to decide foreign training. It may be costly. But I think that it will be a great investment for organizational development.
