

BRACU launches new website

DHAKA, OCT 9: BRAC University (BRACU) Ayesha Abed Library conducted a one-day workshop on Using Open Source Content Management System Drupal to build Library Websites on Sunday, says a press release.

A total of 26 library professionals from 14 public and private universities, and research institutes participated in the workshop. Prof Ainun Nishat, Vice Chancellor of BRACU, launched the BRACU Library website based on Drupal (www.library.bracu.ac.bd).

The new website developed by BRACU Library reflects the library's forward-thinking vision and commitment to the growing needs of its users. Drupal is currently being used by numerous academic libraries in the world including Stanford, Toronto, Columbia, Cornell, Washington, Simon Fraser, Calgary and Minnesota University.

Prof Ainun Nishat Vice Chancellor of BRACU, as a chief guest launched the BRACU Library website based on Drupal on Sunday.

Prof Ainun Nishat praised the initiatives taken by the BRACU library. He mentioned that this new site will greatly improve the experience of the library users.

He distributed certificates among the participants attended the workshop following the launching ceremony. Registrar of the University Air Cdre (retd) Ishfaq Ilahi Choudhury was also present in the launching ceremony.