Nippon Paint launches Asia Young Designer Award 2018

Nippon Paint launched Asia Young Designer Award competition for the students of architecture and interior designing departments of different universities in Bangladesh. The idea was to nurture the future of architecture and interior designing sectors. The Gold Award winners were given BDT 50000 and the Silver Award winners were given BDT 25000, for each category. The Gold Award winners will fly to Singapore in March 2019 to represent Bangladesh.

In Singapore, the Asia Young Designer of the Year 2018/19 in the region will win an all-expense paid six-week placement in the Design Discovery program of Harvard University Graduate School of Design, following the establishment of the Gennosuke Obata Fellowship at Harvard by Nippon Paint. The Gold Award winner for Architecture category was Hamidah Ashrafi Fateha from BRAC University and from Interior Design was Asfia Islam from BUET. The best supporting school award was won by Sonargaon University for submitting the highest number of projects this year.

In the award ceremony Architect Khadem Ali, Prof. Qazi Azizul Mowla, Architect N. R. Khan and Architect AFM Mohiuddin Akhand were present as jury members. Gladys Goh, Group General Manager, and other high officials were present on behalf of Nippon Paint Bangladesh.
