

BRAC University rename engineering school

November 18, 2022 00:00:00

Guests at an event where the BRAC University announced the renaming of its engineering school as the BSRM School of Engineering recently.

BRAC University announced the renaming of its engineering school as the BSRM School of Engineering in an event held recently on its campus. The event was attended by engineering faculty, students and alumni, as well as representatives from the BSRM Group of Companies.

BSRM School of Engineering will recruit world-class faculty over the next several years, fund cutting-edge research in key impact areas and promote curriculum innovation. The contribution by BSRM Group to the University's endowment will also provide for a number of merit-based scholarships, including five full-tuition awards for engineering students.

"We are pleased to make this contribution to enable a new generation of engineers be ready to accept the challenges for designing and building sustainable solutions," said Aameir Alihussein, Managing Director of BSRM Group.

Chairperson of Brac Tamara Abed said, "We welcome the contribution from BSRM Group of Companies as the University embarks on a path of transformation to lead global discourses on innovation for development and social progress, while remaining steadfast in the spirit of its founding".