Panopticon: The panopticon was proposed as a model prison by Jeremy Bentham. Panopticon means “all seeing” worked as a round-the-clock surveillance system. It was designed in a way so that the prisoners could never know when the inspector was observing him/her. This situation would arise a mental uncertainty which would become a brutal instrument of discipline.

Power of Gaze: According to Foucault, the gaze is not an abstraction seeking hidden essences, but rather is practical and a concrete examining of the object before it. The gaze operates through a successive order of reading, it “records and totalizes” all information within its purview.

Chapter 1. Introduction

In today's competitive business environment, a company's survival and growth depend on the strength of its marketing strategy. Traditional advertising has historically relied on print publications, broadcast media, and outdoor billboards. Yet since the internet has been more widely used and the world has become smaller, many online activities are dominated by advertisements for foreign items. A reliable advertising agency is a key business partner for any company that wants to establish a strong brand presence and connect with its target audience. These companies use teams of creative experts to construct advertising campaigns that appeal to the audience's emotions. These experts include copywriters, graphic models, and video producers.

Advertising agencies work with businesses to identify what makes them unique, and then use that knowledge to create advertisement that highlight those advantages. Most advertising agencies operate on a methodical, process-driven fashion, and a typical campaign's development and rollout span many stages. The advertising agency begins by researching to learn more about the clients, its competitors, and its ideal customer. When this data is collected, a strategy for the campaign may be formulated. The strategy includes the intended message, the creative elements, and the media outlets via which the message will be disseminated. Once the strategy is in place, the company begins focusing on the growth of creative aspects, such as copywriting, graphic design, and video creation. The goal is to generate content that is not only interesting and memorable but also effectively communicates the campaign's key ideas. The agency can also handle media buying and planning. Finding the best media outlets to reach a certain demographic requires careful consideration of pricing and placement options. Moreover, companies rely heavily on the services of marketing agencies because of the crucial role they play in helping them achieve their marketing goals. This includes developing a logo and slogan, creating promotional materials like brochures and sales presentations, and organizing and hosting public events and trade shows. Moreover, marketing agencies may provide market research and analysis, competitive analysis, and consumer insights that can inform business decisions. The aim is to come up with a marketing plan that can effectively communicate the company's vision about product or service to the target audience.

When I was a teenager, marketing and media were interesting subjects for me. Majoring in English and concentrating in Media and Cultural Studies made me realize I was on the right path. I have learned immensely throughout my academic journey till now. The courses I have taken these four years of my Bachelor degree, helped me gain an understanding of literature, ELT and Media as I expected. Then the internship I completed in three months helped me a lot to turn my bookish knowledge into a practical one. Taking courses like ENG331: Globalization and the Media; ENG401: Editing; ENG404: Copywriting and ENG440: English for the Print Media helped me a lot to learn how different aspects of advertising such as copywriting techniques, audiovisual promotions and many other things work. As I always wanted know how customized marketing-based client services works, Paper Rhyme gave me an opportunity to learn that. The friendly environment, working with professionals, the learning experience everything played an important role was a memorable experience in my life.

Chapter – 4: My Daily Tasks at Paper Rhyme

I had multiple opportunity to put what I had learned as a media student into practice during my internship at Paper Rhyme, which was a valuable learning experience for me.

Unquestionably, this experience has greatly enriched my education because it gave me a broad understanding of the advertising industry and how consumer behavior operates. Paper Rhyme team is divided into two sections, as illustrated by the organogram: internal and external. My duties mostly fell under the internal division, but later on I also got the opportunity to plan events that fell under their external division.

Throughout my internship at Paper Rhyme, I performed every task that Ms. Tahsin Ahmed Anha who was my supervisor wanted me to do for the agency.

Monitoring Social Media Posts: There is a specific pattern that should be followed when conducting media monitoring. This pattern is particularly important for the stock market, and business news. My key responsibility was to monitor and handle social media accounts and posts. I used to communicate with my supervisor Ms. Anha about the upcoming month's social media contents and share feedback. Also, I was assigned to do monitor the competitor's and other companies brand marketing activities. Paper Rhyme made an advertisement of LankaBangla on their 25th years old celebration. The first two weeks, I used to observe every comment and reaction on social media on their recent work on LankaBangla. Most of the people appreciated their creativity. I had to inform my supervisor about the feedback from the viewers of social media posts.

Research and Analysis: My supervisor mailed me my research task. I did some research on Non-Life Insurance Companies to write some descriptions about them and their vision, mission, Core values. Then I added top 10 Non-Life/ General Insurance website links in a doc file. I wrote about Nitol Insurance and their competitors. Then also did research on TV AD Commercial Marketing Company in Bangladesh, Social Media Campaign in Bangladesh and Billboard Advertising. Then when I go to office, I discuss it with her that how other brands are doing and how can we take inspiration from them. Also, I did comprehensive research and analysis about the client's industry, intended audience, and rivals that how the present study facilitates the development of a proficient approach and communication plan for the promotional initiative. Then I was given a task to do research on 14 bazar location and write some description about those location along with collecting high resolution picture of those places. For example, Floating Guava Market in Swaeupkathi Pirojpur, Mango Haat in Kansat Chapai Nawabganj, Biggest Wholesale Market in Bangladesh khatunganj Chattagram, Nimsar Vegetable Market in Burichong Cumilla and so on. They gave me two days for this task. Finding 14 bazar location was exciting because I got to learn something new. I also did some research on famous historical places in Bangladesh and write some description about them. Then me and my supervisor sat together and discussed how we can make an advertisement on historical places.

Flowers are purchased from them at this market by wholesalers and retailers from other neighborhoods. Therefore, flower growers in this region concentrate on these four days for maximum benefit from this product widely consumed by beauty seekers.

The Importance of Editing: My primary responsibilities did not entail editing; as I moved through the tasks and transcribed more and more footage, it became a part of my work. Even though English has become a widespread second language, considering how English-oriented our school curriculum is, it is still difficult to find someone in a business context who has a strong understanding of grammar. It needs a professional to maintain the small things in order, such as not adding any specific addresses in the headers and advertisement texts, separating keywords and phrases with commas, appropriate use of semicolons, verifying spelling issues, repairing syntax errors, and so on. I was no expert, but I had taken ENG 404: Copywriting and ENG 401: Editing courses that taught me how to deal with such things. This was the first time I worked with something that was familiar to me. While my editing talents were largely employed for my assignments, they were not confined to that. I would check my colleagues' copy, correct grammatical errors and recommend alternate phrasing. Spelling issues, typos, and grammatical errors were aggravating at times. To keep my assignments error-free, I would have to devote particular attention to them. My editing tasks were not familiar to me but after doing several editing tasks it no longer seemed strange and unfamiliar. Rather I became comfortable with that.

Thematic advertising pertains to the development of a promotional strategy centered on a unifying theme or message, as opposed to emphasizing the product or service being marketed. This form of advertising has proven to be efficacious in engaging the interest of individuals who may not exhibit a proclivity towards conventional product-oriented advertising. Paper Rhyme collaborates extensively with its clientele to determine the most suitable themes for its campaigns while considering its intended audience, brand image, and commercial objectives. Product advertising, on the opposite hand, primarily focuses on promoting a particular service or good. Chapter 6: Integration of Theory, Concept and Terms with My Internship Experience

Panopticon and Gaze: In 1975, book Discipline and Punish, French philosopher Michel Foucault introduced the concept of Panopticism. He presents the well-known idea in his work, which was influenced by the Panopticon, a sort of jail invented by English philosopher Jeremy Bentham. Bentham's concept has a ring of cells arranged around a central observation point from which a lone guard can oversee cell activity while remaining hidden from the inmates. That authority is compared to Bentham's jail by Foucault. Foucault's concept of the panopticon, a metaphor for social governance with perpetual monitoring as its central tenet, was motivated by the fact that prisoners are unaware of the fact whether they are being observed or not. This idea, which is similar to Althusser's theory on ideology, asserts that modern citizens are imprisoned within their own mental and metaphorical prisons. Keeping inmates under control and preventing them from doing undesired movements are the goals. Bentham, however, asserted that those inside a panopticon always believe they are being watched. CCTV cameras are present everywhere in our contemporary culture nowadays to monitor people's behavior. The government uses CCTV to monitor streets and other public areas from a certain central point, which is now known as a panopticon (Foucault).

I could relate to these ideas throughout my internship since I understood the media monitoring component. With the development of technology, we inadvertently provide access to a stranger to the most intimate aspects of our life, which is an unfortunate painful fact.

6.1. Ethics and Ideology: Every part of life benefits from a strong ethical foundation because individuals who respect the norms, values, and beliefs of others are better able to adapt to shifting conditions. A key idea in the study of popular culture is ideology. It is a set of principles and beliefs. Ideology has numerous meanings, but the fundamental notion is that ideology can refer to a systematic set of ideas expressed by a particular group of individuals.

For instance, we may use the term professional ideology to describe the concepts that guide the actions of certain professional organizations. We Develop Business Design is the tagline of Paper Rhyme Advertising Limited, and according to the company's vision statement, Paper Rhyme will thrive to offer its clients a one-stop total creative, media and activation solutions from strategic brand planning and the development of powerful creative to an efficient implementation of campaigns with the highest possible media and public relations coverage. Understanding Clients Business is their focus. Tagline, vision, and consideration is self-explanatory. This is the ideology (a set of beliefs) that Paper Rhyme upholds.

My internship supervisor advised me to be trustworthy and on time. I was instructed to be open and impartial towards everyone at the workplace from the very first day of my internship so that everyone might have faith in me. I had to honor the importance of honesty. I also behaved professionally according to my workplace ethics. As an intern in the advertising agency, I work in an open office space where CCTV cameras are installed to monitor our activities. The cameras track my movements, the duration of my breaks, and the time I arrive and leave the office. Some cameras are positioned to capture the screens of our computers, which allows my supervisors to monitor my work and the time I spend on different tasks.

The process encompasses the identification of the aims and objectives of the partnership, the delineation of roles and responsibilities, and the establishment of a project timeline. At this stage, it is imperative to establish unambiguous communication channels and guidelines for the team to adhere to.

Chapter 8: My Recommendation

During the three months I was interning at Paper Rhyme, I had to continually keep myself informed about not just the latest global trends and news, but also the branding initiatives of the company's competitors. I have identified several areas where Paper Rhyme may strive to enhance and grow its brand image based on my media monitoring. For instance, although Paper Rhyme is currently concentrating on LankaBangla, Dhaka Bank, Community Bank. These three brands are trying to improve their digital presence through Paper Rhyme. But I believe they ought to participate more in the digital realm. The pandemic has taught us the importance of maintaining an online presence when it was the only option to stay in touch with the outside world. I firmly think that Paper Rhyme can reach potential clients in a cost-effective manner through digital marketing.

Chapter 9: Conclusion

One thing that I have learned to accept from the experiences I have had in life is that regretting missed opportunities usually hurts more than regretting missed possibilities. So, after much thought, I decided to switch from a business studies background to the arts, which has always been something I have been passionate about. When I eventually decided to pursue an English degree, I was fully aware of the financial perils of an uncertain future. Nevertheless, I decided to follow what my heart truly desires rather than doing what other people think I should do. Since I want to advance my career in business, working at Paper Rhyme was a good experience for me. I have gained a lot of knowledge from this agency as an intern. I will always be grateful that this agency hired me as an intern, I am also grateful to my supervisor at work. I have grown as a person and as an intern as a result of this experience. I now have the freedom to ponder and investigate the advertising industry, thanks to my internship. I have learned more about work ethics, workplace discipline, and time management since internship at Paper Rhyme.

As a student with a concentration of media and cultural studies, I have acquired several important concepts from my major courses. Through actual duties, this internship has helped me to delve into the depths of numerous difficult phrases, ideas, and theories taught by my faculties in the media courses. I desire to deviate from the ordinary societal standard and strive to establish myself as a person who does justice not just to society but also to herself. I wish to keep my creativity alive while working in a corporate environment in my field of interest, for this I have wept endless tears and experienced infinite scorn from friends and family. I am happy that I pursued what I already wanted.
