BRAC Institute of Languages, a faculty of BRAC University, organised three workshops on the campus from Sunday to Tuesday.

The first discussion was held on Sunday featuring ‘Classroom Facilitation Skills’. It focused on classroom management skills that will help teachers create a positive learning environment.

The second workshop took place on Monday. It was on ‘Critical Thinking Made Easy’ which introduced participants to simple techniques to integrate critical thinking into their classroom activities.

The final lecture on ‘Responding to Students’ Writing’ was organised emphasising on techniques for making feedback and instructional opportunity.

The entire programme was mechanised by Beth Trudell, who has been working with BRAC Institute of Languages since 2006.

In-house faculty members of BRAC University attended the session.
