Abstract

Materials selection is important to teach business writing in post graduate level. Teachers and students have different points of view about authentic materials. The present research attempts to find out teachers and students’ attitude towards authentic materials. Teacher and students have positive attitudes about the authentic materials. They know about the difficulties of using authentic materials and they are ready to overcome that. Students feel interest if there are authentic materials. Therefore it is important to adapt authentic materials in business writing of post graduate level.

Chapter-1: Introduction

1.0 Introduction

Business writing skill is one of the most important language skills for the advance level students of business communication or business English. It is common to use authentic materials in post graduate level business writing courses. Teachers and students of business writing always try to improve their skills by using various materials. Authentic materials are preferable for many teachers and students of business writing.

According to Hermer (1991), authentic materials are designed for native speakers and not for the language learner. He added, these texts are real (As cited in Tamo, 2009, p. 74). Heitler (2005) says, authentic materials are the source of up-to-date information that can be directly relevant to business English learners (p.5). According to Tamo (2009), materials collected from the dynamic sources like television, internet, newspapers, magazines, newsletters, brochures, leaflets, bulletins, annual papers, articles are often mentioned as sources of authentic materials (p.74). When teachers think that the books are not enough to give updated information to the students, they prefer authentic materials. Authentic materials make the students informed about the very recent contents of English for specific purposes and Business English and business writing as well. Authentic materials can give practical idea about the content and thus can make the students more interested about the topic. Authentic materials make the topic understandable and realistic to the students. It can be often seen that people of various professions want to be fluent in English as much as they can. But it is hardly possible for them to grab all the necessary materials which are relevant with business English and business writing.
Authentic materials have both positive and negative sides. Authentic materials can be back dated very easily. Use of same materials from a source is a barrier to get maximum benefit from authentic materials. On the other hand, authentic materials have potential to provide the current relevant data to get adequate knowledge about business writing and business communication. Proper authentic materials can make the topic more interesting to the students. Authentic materials should have potential to cover almost all the aspects of business writing (such as emails, memos, vouchers, applications, press release etc.). Students of business English and business writing need to be up to date about the current trend of business writing. Authentic materials can help the students make them up to date. On the contrary, teacher may have difficulty to find the relevant authentic materials to incorporate with text books. Researcher will try to find the attitudes of teachers and students towards authentic materials.

1.1 Problem Statement: Attitudes to the authentic materials of business writing can be positive, negative or neutral. Confusion about the adaptation of the authentic materials are the topic of research.

1.2 Purpose of the study: The main purpose of the study is to find the attitudes of teachers and students towards authentic materials of business writing in post graduate level.

1.3 Significance of study: The current study will be significant to various stakeholders including teachers, students, and publishers who will be informed about the various potentials and problems of authentic materials to make informed choices about authentic materials.

1.4 Limitation of study: Due to various reasons, the researcher could cover only a few universities, and thereby the results may not be very representative.
Chapter-2: Literature Review

2.1 Business English & Business writing: Business English is different from general English in terms of contents and materials. According to Flinders (2012), Business English teachers have to pick some topics such as ‘general language knowledge’, ‘professional communication skill’, ‘specialist language knowledge (jargon)’, ‘general communication skill’, ‘interpersonal communication skill’ etc. He also mentioned course books, resource books, software etc. (p.191). According to Evans (2013), course of business English and business writing will vary due to the age, potential and cultural of the learners. Experience is also a factor here. (p.281). Dorn (1999) says, business letters, memos, e-mails, written reports etc. are the example of business writing (p.45). Universities offer business writing course in their post graduate program to develop the writing skill of students (As cited in Pittenger et al, 2006, p.257). Writing is really the formal documentation of a problem and how it was resolved, not the means by which the problem is solved (Dorn, 1999, p.53).

2.2 Qualities of Business writing materials: Valencia (1991) explained that materials should be selected carefully according to the learners abilities and learners needs. Materials should allow the learners to engage in higher order thinking (p. 591). As learners have different learning style. Ideal materials expose the learners to a wide variety of materials catering to various learning styles (As cited in Tomilson, 2012, p. 143). Materials as well as authentic materials should be related with the content according the needs of students and teachers (McDonough & Shaw, 2004, p.73).

In business writing, writer must know the receiver’s language and cultural background. For example, culture of USA and China are not the same. Writer should have skill to differentiate both cultures for an effective writing. Cultural awareness and norms are important in workplace to avoid misunderstanding. Authentic materials can increase the cross-cultural knowledge of the students (Phillips & Clifton, 2007, p. 5). Business communication based on the proper use of international language that is English. Business writing materials should have option to develop strategies and techniques that facilitate effective communication in the global business (Scott, 1994, p.44). The acceptability of materials is also based on the suitability of the materials for different learning style (El-Sakran, 2012, p.3).

Authentic materials have to fulfill the needs of the readers properly. Author has to focus on the choice and views of the readers and students. If an author has perception of what the students should know at this stage of learning will be a problem (El-Sakran, 2012, p.4). Business writing learner practice correct form of ‘typical business text’ by generating, revising and editing short texts using ‘varied’ style, though grammar and structures are most problematic for the non-native learners (Berly & Mcgraw, 2010, p.135).

2.3 Authentic materials of business writing:

Authentic material is not prepared for language learners though it can be used as a tool of language learning. According to Maroko (2010), authentic materials are not created for the purpose of teaching language in a classroom. These texts are real and not designed for the students of language. But these texts are used for transactional and interaction purposes. Authentic materials are produced to serve a number of purposes to communicate (p.6). According to Alejandro G. Martinez (2002), “Authentic would be material designed for native speakers of English used in the classroom in a way similar to the one it was designed for”. Authentic materials of business English are related with goals, objectives, learner’s needs and interest in terms of real life and meaningful communication (Roger, 1988, as cited in Tamo, 2009, p. 74). Teachers want to use authentic materials because these are actual, attested, authentic instances of use, not as intuitive, invented, isolated sentences (As cited in Maroko, 2010, p.8).
Gilmore (2004) explained that the text books and the authentic materials are not same. Some text books have authentic instructions but these are not enough to meet the need of authentic materials in case of business writing (p. 371). McDonough and Shaw (2004) mentioned that the authentic materials are also important with textbooks. It is the duty of a teacher to make the topic of the text book interesting to the learners (p. 75).

Authentic materials have some advantages. Peacock (1997) says, authentic materials are really motivational factors for students. His research shows that authentic materials significantly increase the learner’s levels of on task behavior, concentration and the involvement in the target activity more than artificial materials (p. 152). Tamo (2009) asserted some advantages in his paper. He says, authentic materials can inform students about current world. Same piece of material can be used under different circumstances (p. 76). Tamo (2009) says, “Authentic materials is significant since it increases students’ motivation for learning, makes the learner be exposed to the ‘real’ language” (p. 75).

Maroko (2010) mentioned some advantages of authentic materials. According to him, these materials will expose to the learners a wide range of natural language use at professional works. Authentic materials can bring the reality to the classroom and make the classroom interaction meaningful. Authentic materials can remove the gap between classroom and work place (p. 9). He also added, these materials focus on skill rather than the facts of the language. Most of the authentic materials are readily available and inexpensive teaching resources. Many authentic materials are easy to access. Learners can be motivated by the authentic materials as they know the actual term or language using at service life (p. 10). Banghban (2011) noted that, ESP is designed to fulfill the needs of student to know the real language of their workplace. Authentic materials are important in ESP because of this reason (p.3).
On the other hand, authentic materials have some disadvantages. According to Tamo (2009), materials can become outdated easily. Example: Newspaper. There are some drawbacks of using authentic materials. As Maroko (2010) asserted, some authentic materials have complex language structure and unusual language structure that are not immediately useful to the learners (p. 10). He also added some materials are culturally biased. Some materials might exhibit unpredictable structures. Authentic materials can have sensitive information like medical prescription or lab report. These can be problematic for the students to understand. Teachers have to give prior idea to the students. Teachers might need to select the appropriate materials for the student by consider the ability of learners (p. 11).

When too many different structures are mixed in an article, especially students with lower proficiency level face problems to process all of them at the same time. Repetition of same content or material can create boredom to the students. Sometimes too many difficult structures are mixed in an article. This can be problematic for students (Kilickaya, 2004). Also, authentic materials often represent extra challenges to the learners and create a natural style to the learning process. Textbooks have carefully chosen vocabulary and language structure. On the other hand, authentic materials expose colloquialism, slangs, age jargons, regional dialects etc. (Georgieva, N.D., p. 1). Jacobson et al (2003) says, meaning of authentic material is a matter of debate (p. 4).

Difficulties for authentic materials can be by the teacher’s initiatives. Teachers have to focus on the difficulties and the effectiveness of materials to the students of different level (Georgieva, N.D., p. 2). Student’s level is important to give authentic input to the students. Teachers have to consider the cultural background of the students to reduce the problems for authentic materials (Tamo, 2009, p. 77). Topic of authentic materials can be selected by the interest of the students (Baghban, 2011, p. 3).
2.4 Newspaper and Magazine as authentic materials: Authentic materials are broadly classified into audio, visual and printed materials. Newspaper is a tested authentic material for business writing. According to Case (2012), there has been much use and abuse of newspaper in business English classroom. Newspapers can help learners acquire language. Students can cope with the context easily. Teachers have to be concerned about the cultural choice of students. As an example, he mentioned the name of British Tabloids in general which are culturally specific type of newspaper and not universal for a corporate culture. Newspaper can easily be out of date. There can be copy right issues. The authentic texts of a newspaper are often too long and can have extreme business and economics related irrelevant content.

Business magazines can be a great source of business writing materials. For example, The Economist has summary of politics and business at the front of the book. These can be a good example of business writing. In some cases, the topics are complex in the Economist. But still it is helpful to the learners (The Word Factory, 2011).

According to Heitler (2005), The Economist playing important role to teach business reading and writing to the students. He also added that the Harvard Business review is a good source for the practitioner. This magazine focuses on the critical issue of business and economics. It is difficult for the average students of non-native English speaker students. So, teachers have to be careful when they are going to adapt this magazine as an authentic material of business writing.

Camacho (N.D.) says, newspapers and online newspapers are the great source to the students. Magazines are connected with the learners’ interest. In his paper, he mentioned some advantages to use newspaper and magazine as authentic materials. These are: Interesting subjects, source of vocabulary items, creative works, visuals aids etc. (p.6).
2.5 Research Question: The aim of the research was to find the answers of following question-

- What is the perception of teachers and students towards authentic materials of business writing?

Chapter 3: Research Methodology

3.1 Introduction:

The chapter presents an overview of the research methodology to find out the perception of students and teachers towards authentic materials of business writing in postgraduate level. This chapter is divided into several parts given below.

3.2 Background of study:

Materials design and evaluation are necessary to achieve success in academic purpose. Attitudes of the teachers and students are simultaneously important to make a better use of selected materials. This research is to know the perception of the teacher and students to the authentic materials of business writing course of postgraduate level. The result will expose the necessity of selection and use of authentic materials in business writing.

3.3 Participants:

To get information, researcher selected a number of teachers and students from different private universities of Dhaka, Bangladesh. A number of participants were service holders of different multinational companies and offices and they were students as well. Survey conducted on MBA student of business writing (as a part business English) courses. Teachers were from English department. Number of participants, universities, and observed classes are given below in a table:
3.4 Instrument:

Researchers have used quantitative methods to conduct the survey. Questionnaire was the instrument of research. Using questionnaires is helpful for both researchers and participants. Also, it takes less time to fill up the questionnaire. Researchers prepared teacher’s questionnaire, student’s questionnaire, and researcher’s own checklist. Each questionnaire has ten statements or questions. All the statements are related to the assessment of authentic materials of business writing in post-graduate level and the perception of teachers and students towards authentic materials. In the questionnaire, the teachers and students had to put a tick mark on appropriate boxes. The researcher used Likert scale to do the analysis of the data. Grade of the Likert scale are: entirely disagree=1, disagree=2, not sure=3, agree=4, entirely agree=5

3.5 Data collection procedure: Participants were skilled enough to understand the meaning of the questionnaire and the goal of research. Researchers have tried to make the questions simple enough to make it easier for participants. As the participants already have more or less experience about real-life business and corporate tasks, they do not hesitate to give answers. Researchers have given a short briefing before they start to fill up the questionnaire. It was helpful to the participants to understand what exactly the needs of this survey. For data collection, the researcher contacted the authority and the course teacher of that university. They gave permission to conduct the survey and were observe the classes and provide them questions. 30 copies of questionnaire were prepared for each class. Total 100 copies of questionnaire prepared to conduct the survey.

3.6 Data analysis procedure: Researchers use a scale (lickert) to analyze the data. After collecting data, samples were organized into a table to analyze the mean score. “The mean is the sum of all scores of all subjects in a group divided by the number of subjects, \( X = \Sigma X/n \)” (Seliger & Shohamy, 1989, as cited in Hussain, 2010, p. 117). Mean score provides the average score of each question. Mean scores help the researcher to identify the result into a percentage which is suitable to present data in a table.

Chapter 4: Results and Discussion

4.1 Introduction:

This chapter of research paper focuses on the data analysis and the results. Results interpret in terms of mean score. Answers from the questionnaires of teachers and students are analyzed and presented in the different table of this chapter. There is a discussion about the result found from the survey.

4.2 Results as found from Students’ Questionnaire Survey:

Researcher has used a scale to measure answers given by the participants. There were five options for the participants. They had to give ‘Tick’ \((\checkmark)\) mark on the appropriate box. Researcher has converted the result into mathematical figure. Each item/statement has five different scale of number. These are: entirely disagree= 1, disagree= 2, not sure= 3, agree= 4, entirely agree=5
Researcher has presented the mean score in table which is given below:

Here, first column from the right indicates mean score. The top numeric figures indicate the number of scorers and the bottom figures indicate the converted mathematical figures. The bottom figures are needed for mean score.

• Selection of the authentic materials is very essential part. If teacher wants to use authentic materials in classroom, he or she must have to consider the level of students. Teachers need to be concern about the selection of materials while he/she is going to take a class.

• Implementation of authentic materials is easier in business writing classes when students already have some prior idea about the content of the course. Teacher has to give some idea about the course content and the necessity of authentic materials before s/he starts.

• Authentic materials inspire students to actively participate in class. Student should also be motivated to collect and compile various types of authentic materials according to their needs.

• Make the topic realistic to the student are a challenge for the teachers. Authentic materials should be very relevant with the content of that course.

• Teachers have to consider age and profession and the background of the students. It will help the teachers to collect the related authentic materials for the students. If the classes are based on business writing, materials should be based on business correspondence.

• Teachers have to examine the proficiency of writing of the students after using authentic materials. - One of the major tasks of a teacher is to keep the interest of the students to the lesson.

- Discussion about a topic in the classroom should be very specific. Teachers have to present the relevant authentic materials to the students during class. If students are not capable to understand the topic, teacher has to modify the materials.

- Authentic materials should be related with current world to get rid from boredom during the classes. Teachers and students need to be engage with the topic of discussion and teacher should motivate the students to participate in classroom activities. Active participation of both teachers and students in class will increase the communication skills.

- Students of post graduate level are already doing job or preparing to get a job. Therefore the real life language of corporate world is useful to them. They are interested to get idea about business jargons and other business writing related vocabulary term. They will inspire to learn if there are up to date and modified authentic materials. Therefore teacher need to select the relevant business articles and other form of authentic materials to make the topic easy and interesting.

- Teacher should also give emphasis to the pre-writing task to them. As example, teacher will give a paragraph to the students and ask them to guess the possible name of that paragraph. Thus teachers will able to focus on brainstorming of students and it is important too. Teachers have to try to avoid repetition of the same materials.
