BRACU faculty wins Global Essay Competition

Dewan Hasan Mahmood

“Health research towards the Universal Coverage” is the theme of this year's prestigious essay competition 'Emerging Voices 2010', organised in connection with the 52nd Annual Colloquium organised by Institute of Tropical Medicine, Antwerp, Belgium. This year's colloquium put young researchers from throughout the globe in the spotlight and provided them with the opportunity to present their ideas in an innovative format. Taufique Joarder, a Lecturer from James P Grant School of Public Health, BRAC University has been recognised officially by the Colloquium as an 'Emerging Voice' with regard to his essay titled 'Achieving Universal Health Coverage through Community Empowerment: Comprehensive Primary Health Care Approach in Bangladesh'. The feat will capacitate him not only to participate in the colloquium in Belgium during November 08-10, 2010 but also to get hands on training on scientific writing for peer reviewed international journals. His award winning essay will be published, after fine tuning during the colloquium, in a reputed journal, and will be presented in the First Global Symposium on Health Systems Research due on November 16-19, 2010 in Montreaux, Switzerland.
