

Campus Corner

Thursday, 03 November 2011 Author / Source: Independent News

RFID system at BRACU:

DHAKA, NOV 2: BRAC University Ayesha Abed Library officially launched Radio Frequency Identification (RFID) system in the library for the first time among the university libraries in Bangladesh on Sunday, says a press release. The Vice Chancellor of BRAC University (BRACU) Prof Ainun Nishat officially inaugurated the newly established RFID system.

Hasina Afroz, Librarian of BRACU gave a briefing on the use of the new system. Library professionals from different universities and institutes, and faculty and students of BRACU were present at this ceremony. Integration of RFID at BRACU Library ensures considerable security and adequate facilitates for librarians to provide more value added services to users in digital environment and work comfortably for a digital future. INDEPENDENT NEWS