

Volume 6 | Issue 42 | October 21, 2012 |

Drupal at BRAC University

BRAC University Ayesha Abed Library conducted a one-day workshop on 'Using Open Source Content Management System Drupal to build Library Websites' on October 7, 2012. A total of 26 library professionals from 14 public and private universities, and research institutes participated in the workshop. The Vice Chancellor of BRAC University, Professor Ainun Nishat launched the BRACU library website based on Drupal (<http://library.bracu.ac.bd>). Drupal is currently being used by numerous academic libraries in the world including Stanford, Toronto, Columbia, Cornell, Washington, Simon Fraser, Calgary and Minnesota University.